

Hussain Hadah^{*} Augustine Denteh[†]

May 13, 2024

Abstract

JEL Classification:

Keywords:

^{*}Department of Economics, Tulane University, 6823 St. Charles Ave., New Orleans, LA 70118, United States (e-mail: hhadah@tulane.edu).

[†]Department of Economics, Tulane University, 6823 St. Charles Ave., New Orleans, LA 70118, United States (e-mail: adenteh@tulane.edu).

Some interesting results

- There is a huge attrition in Hispanic identity across generations, which indicate that the Alsan paper could suffer from selection bias. See Figure 1.
- Among all generations, the immigration enforcement policy led to an increase in poor health, free lunch, SNAP, poverty, and food insecurity among children. See Figures 4a, 4b, 4c, 4d, 4e, 4f, and 4g.
- In the rest of the results I break down the analysis by generation, by parents' type for second-generation, and by number of grandparents born in Spanish-speaking countries for third-generation.

Figure 1: Immigration Enforcement and Hispanic Identity by Generation

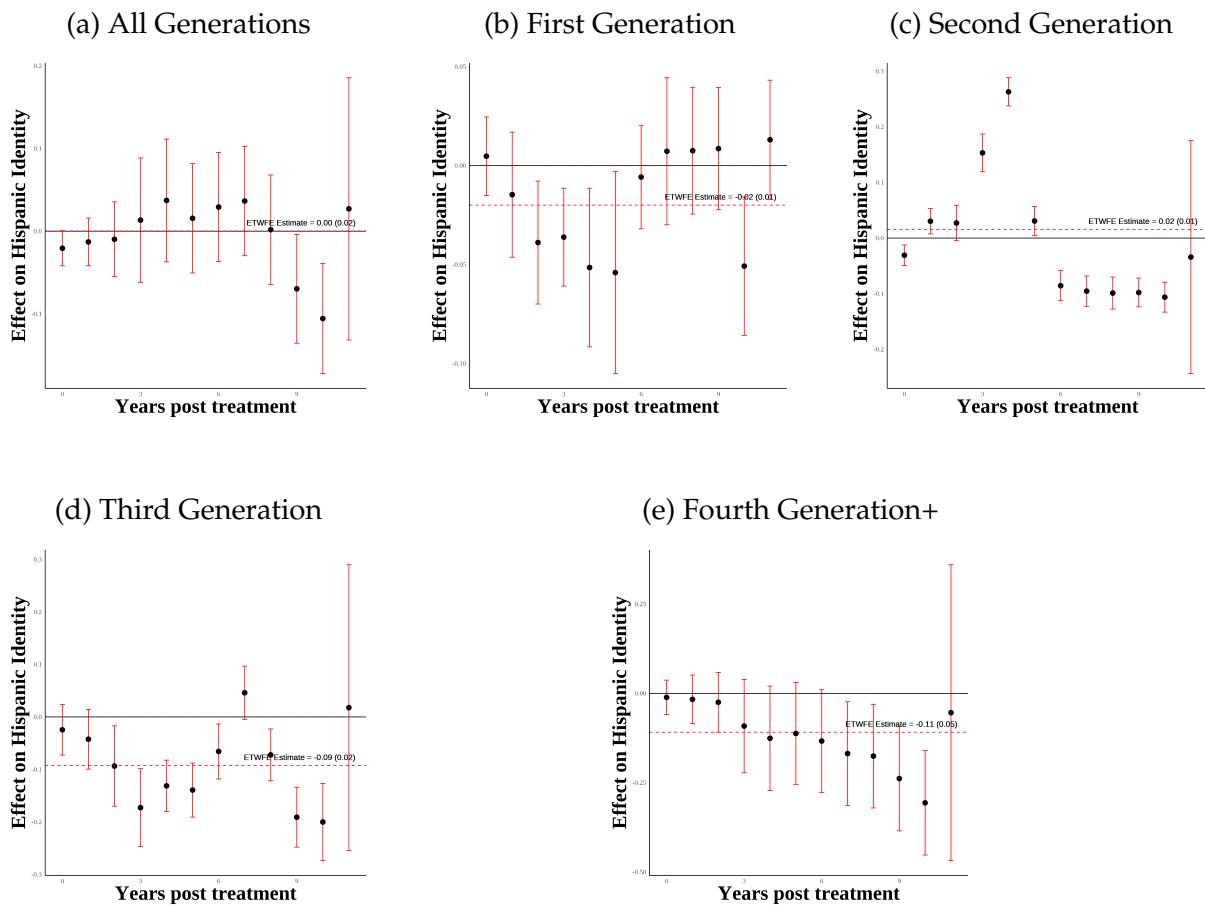

Figure 2: Detailed Analysis of Second Generation Hispanic Identity by Parents' Type

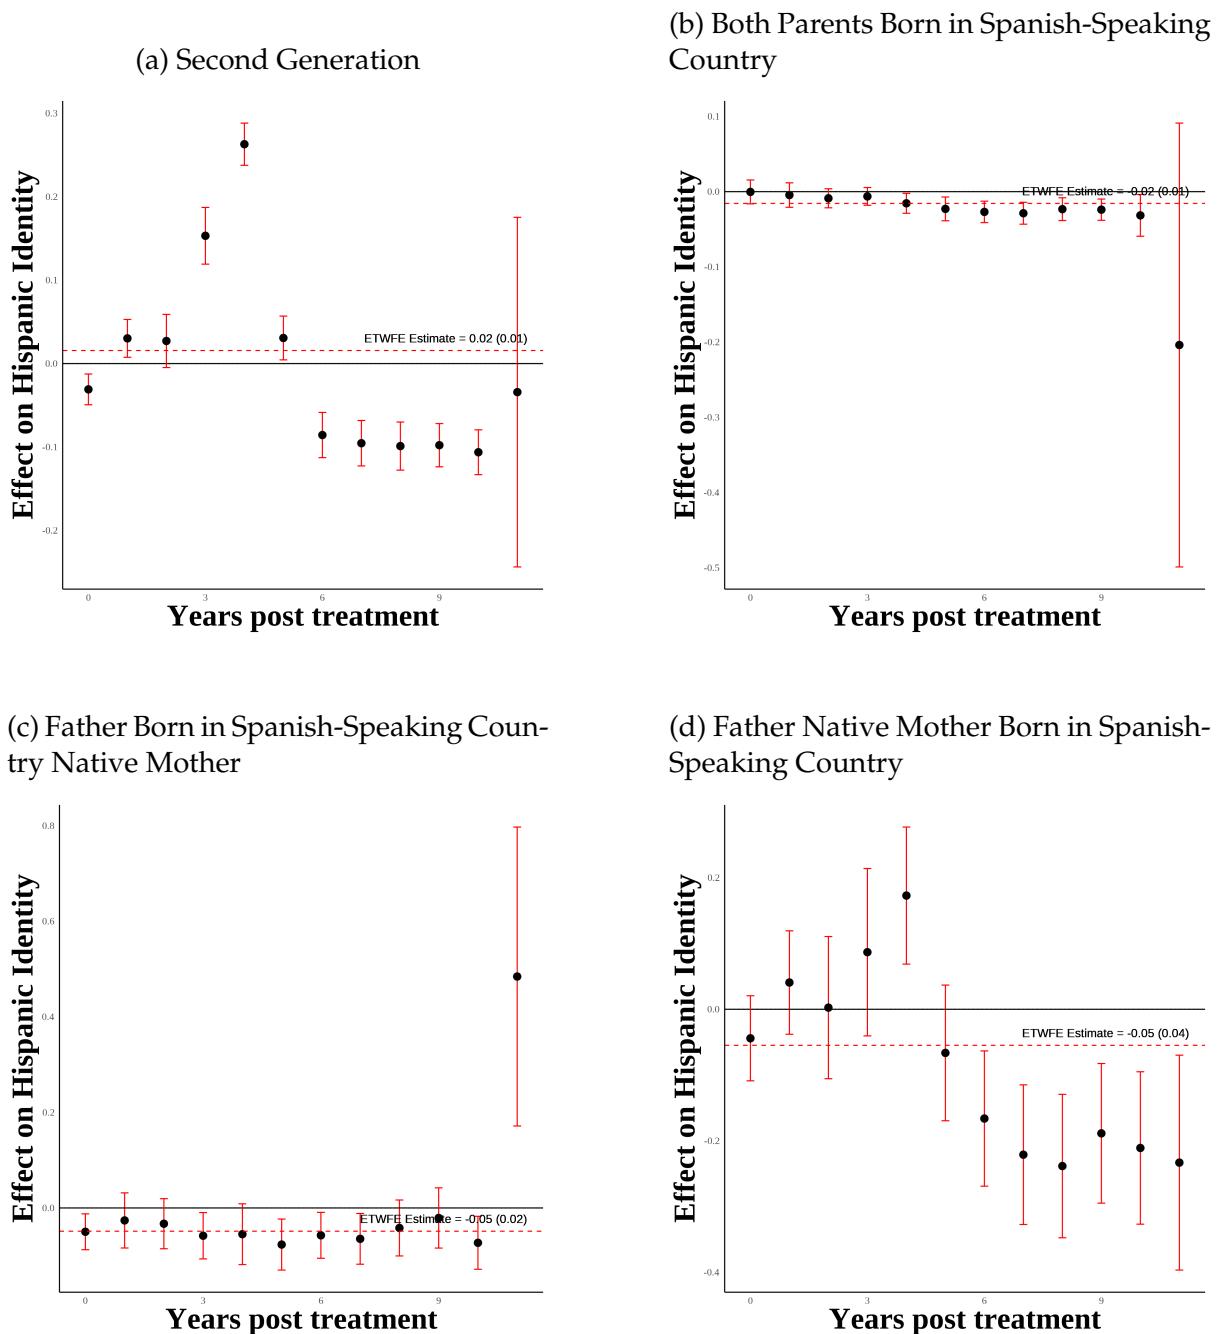

Figure 3: Analysis of Third Generation Hispanic Identity By Number of Grandparents Born in Spanish-Speaking Country

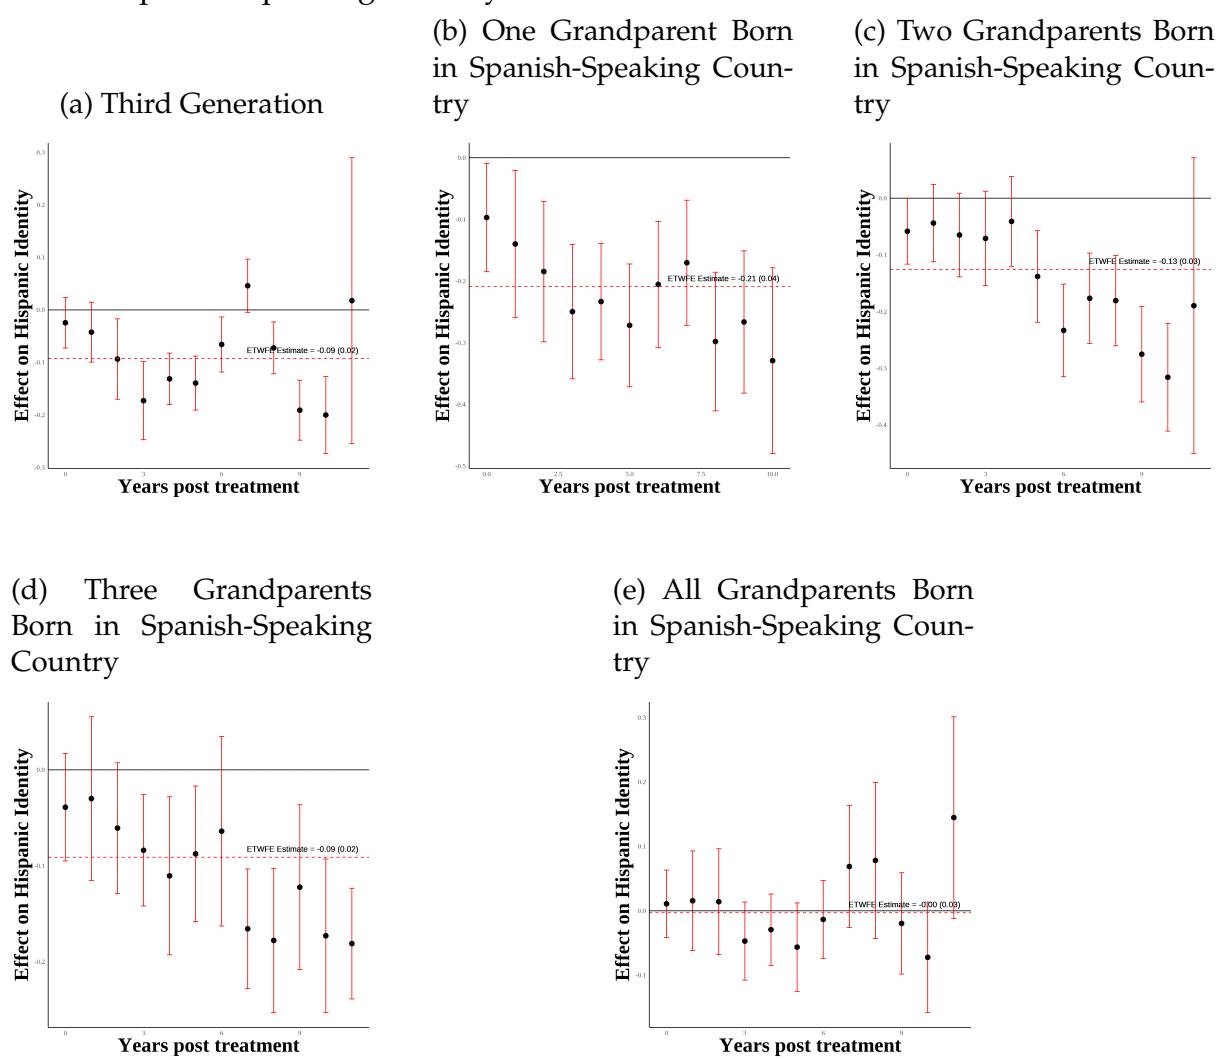

Figure 4: Effect of Immigration Enforcement on Children's Outcomes: All Generations

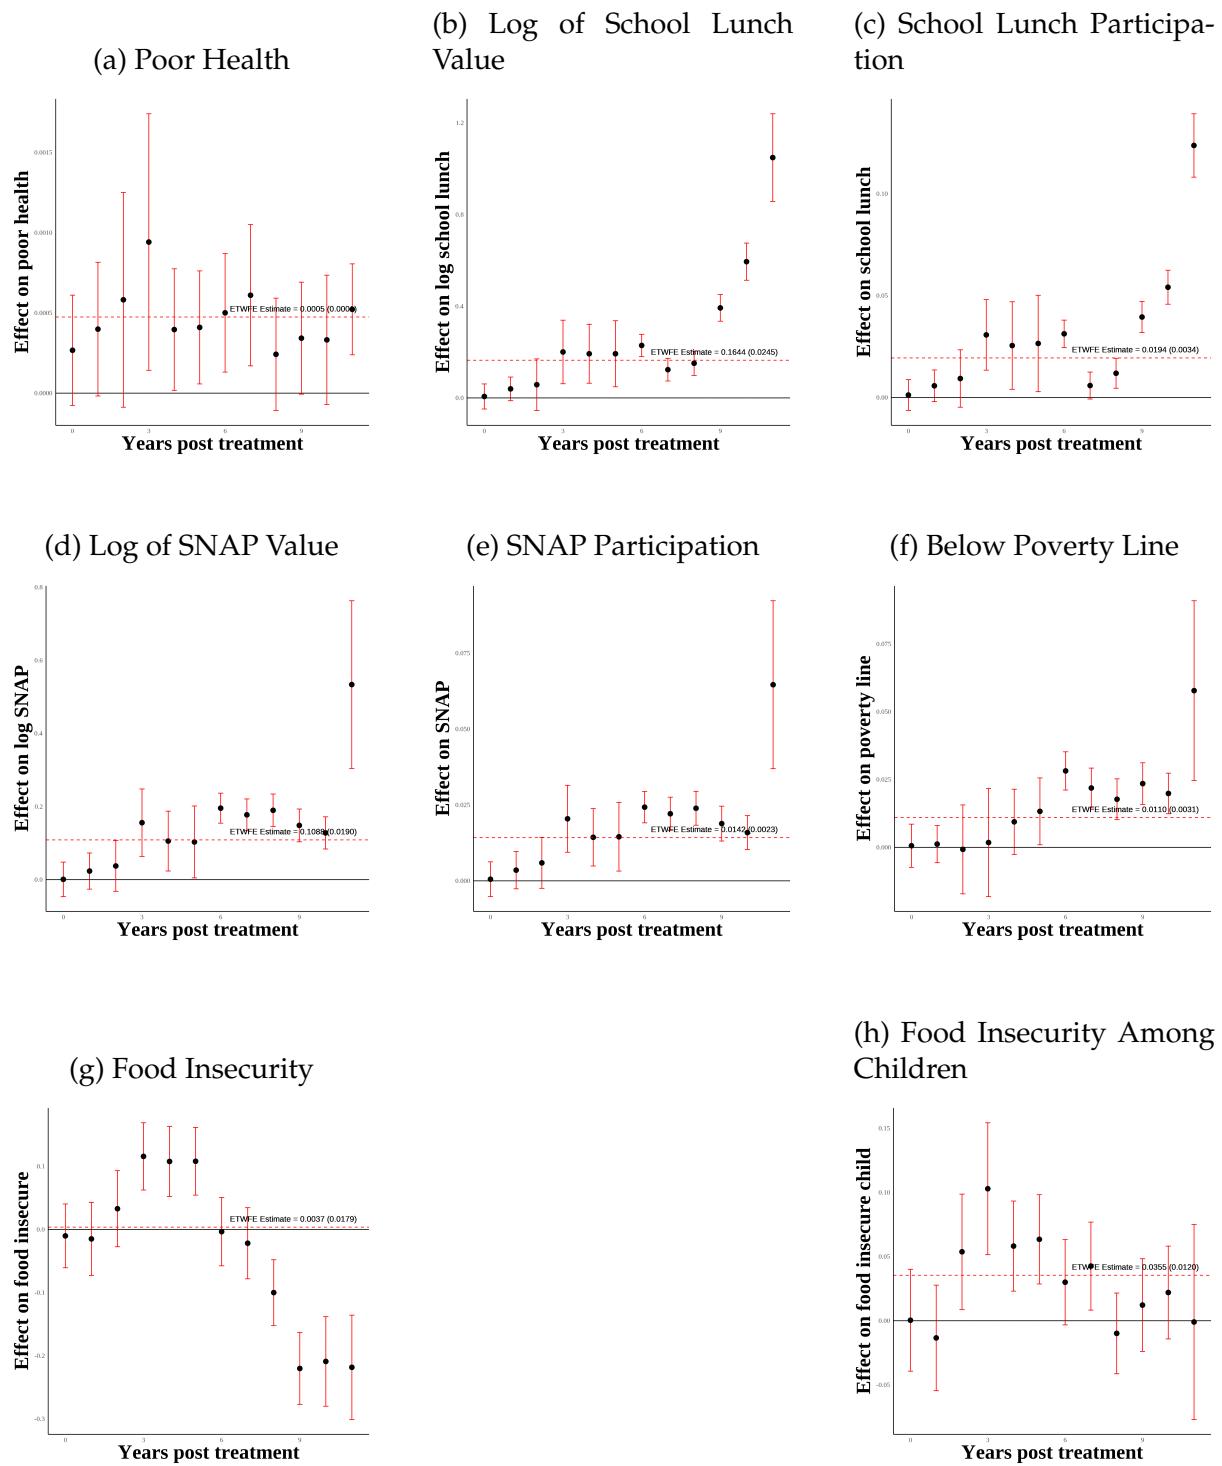

Figure 5: Effect of Immigration Enforcement on Children's Outcomes: First Generation

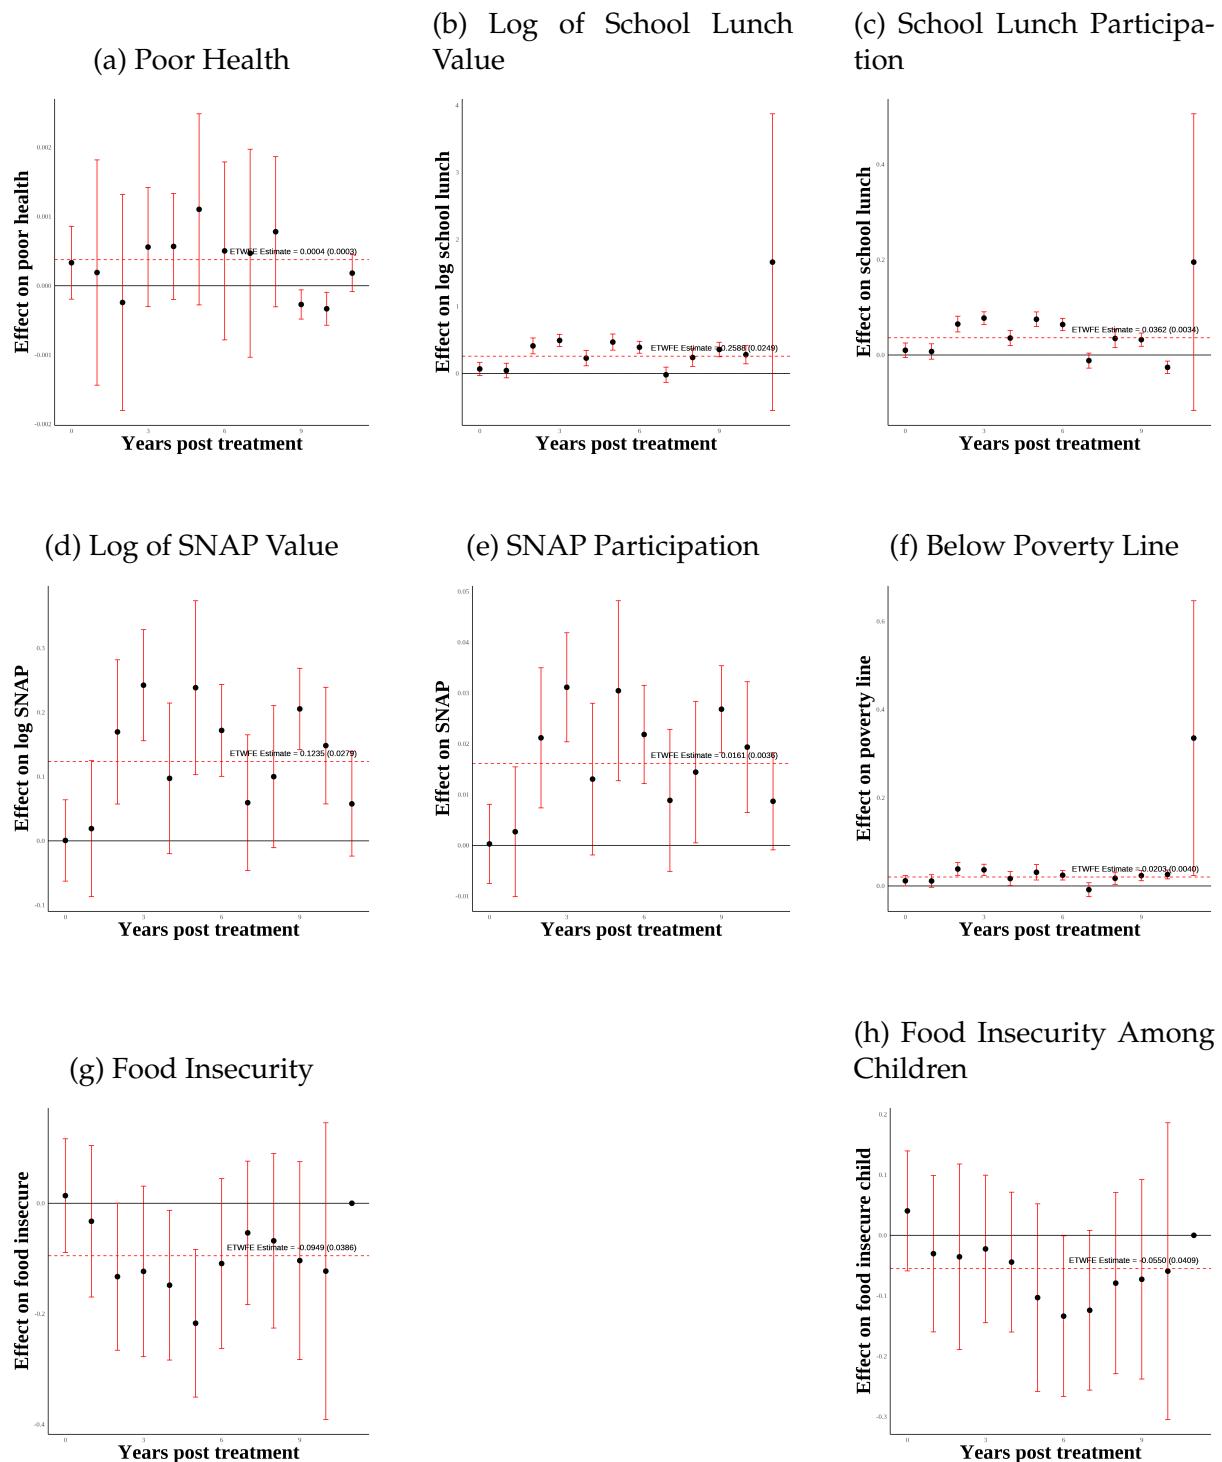

Figure 6: Effect of Immigration Enforcement on Children’s Outcomes: Second Generation

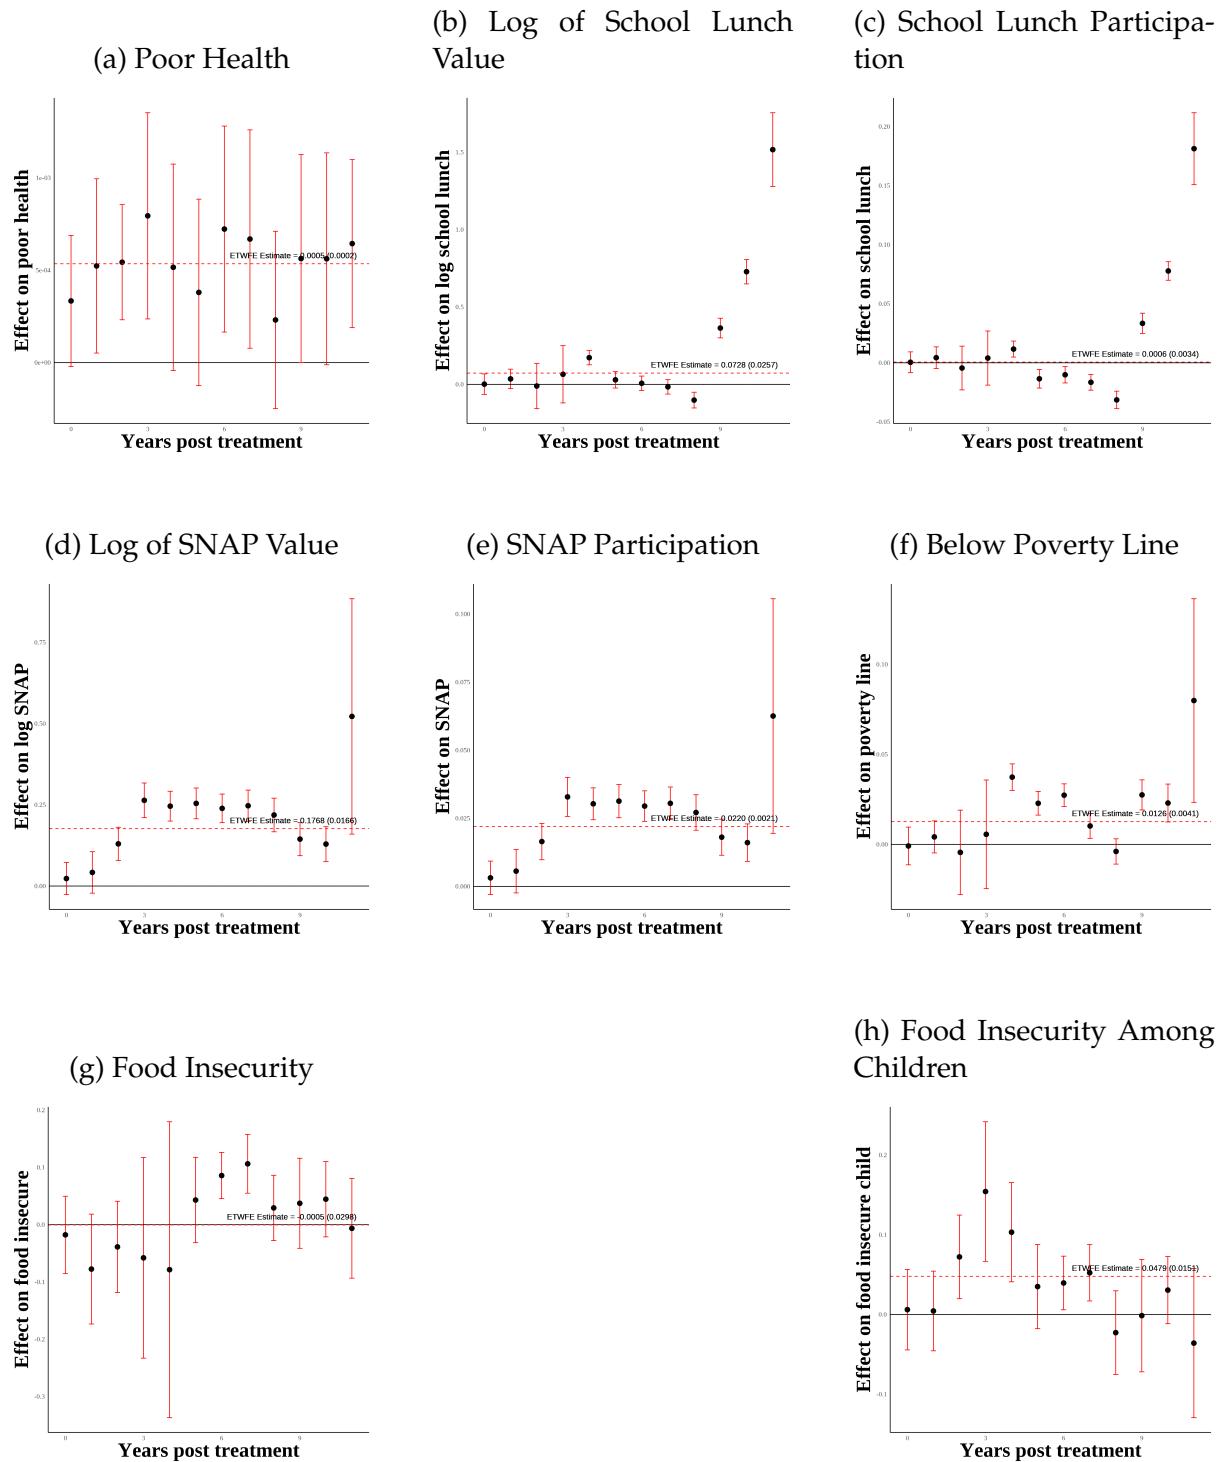

Figure 7: Effect of Immigration Enforcement on Children's Outcomes: Second Generation (HH Parents)

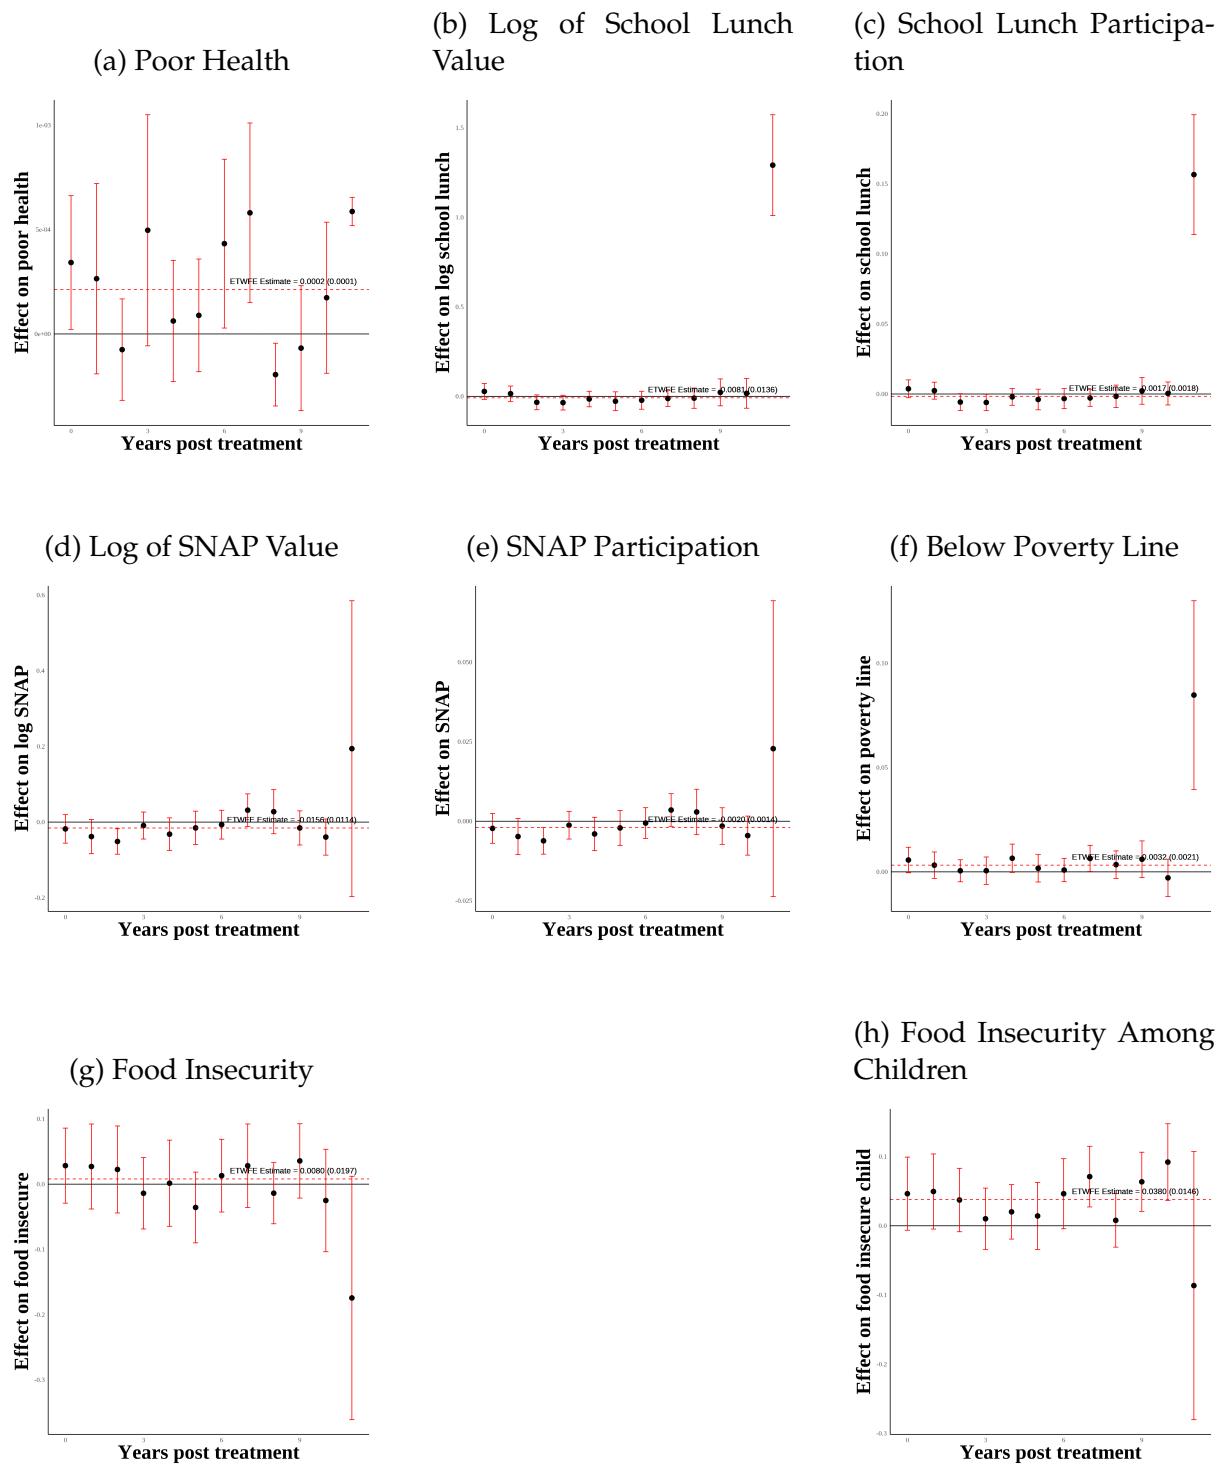

Figure 8: Effect of Immigration Enforcement on Second Generation Outcomes: HW Parents

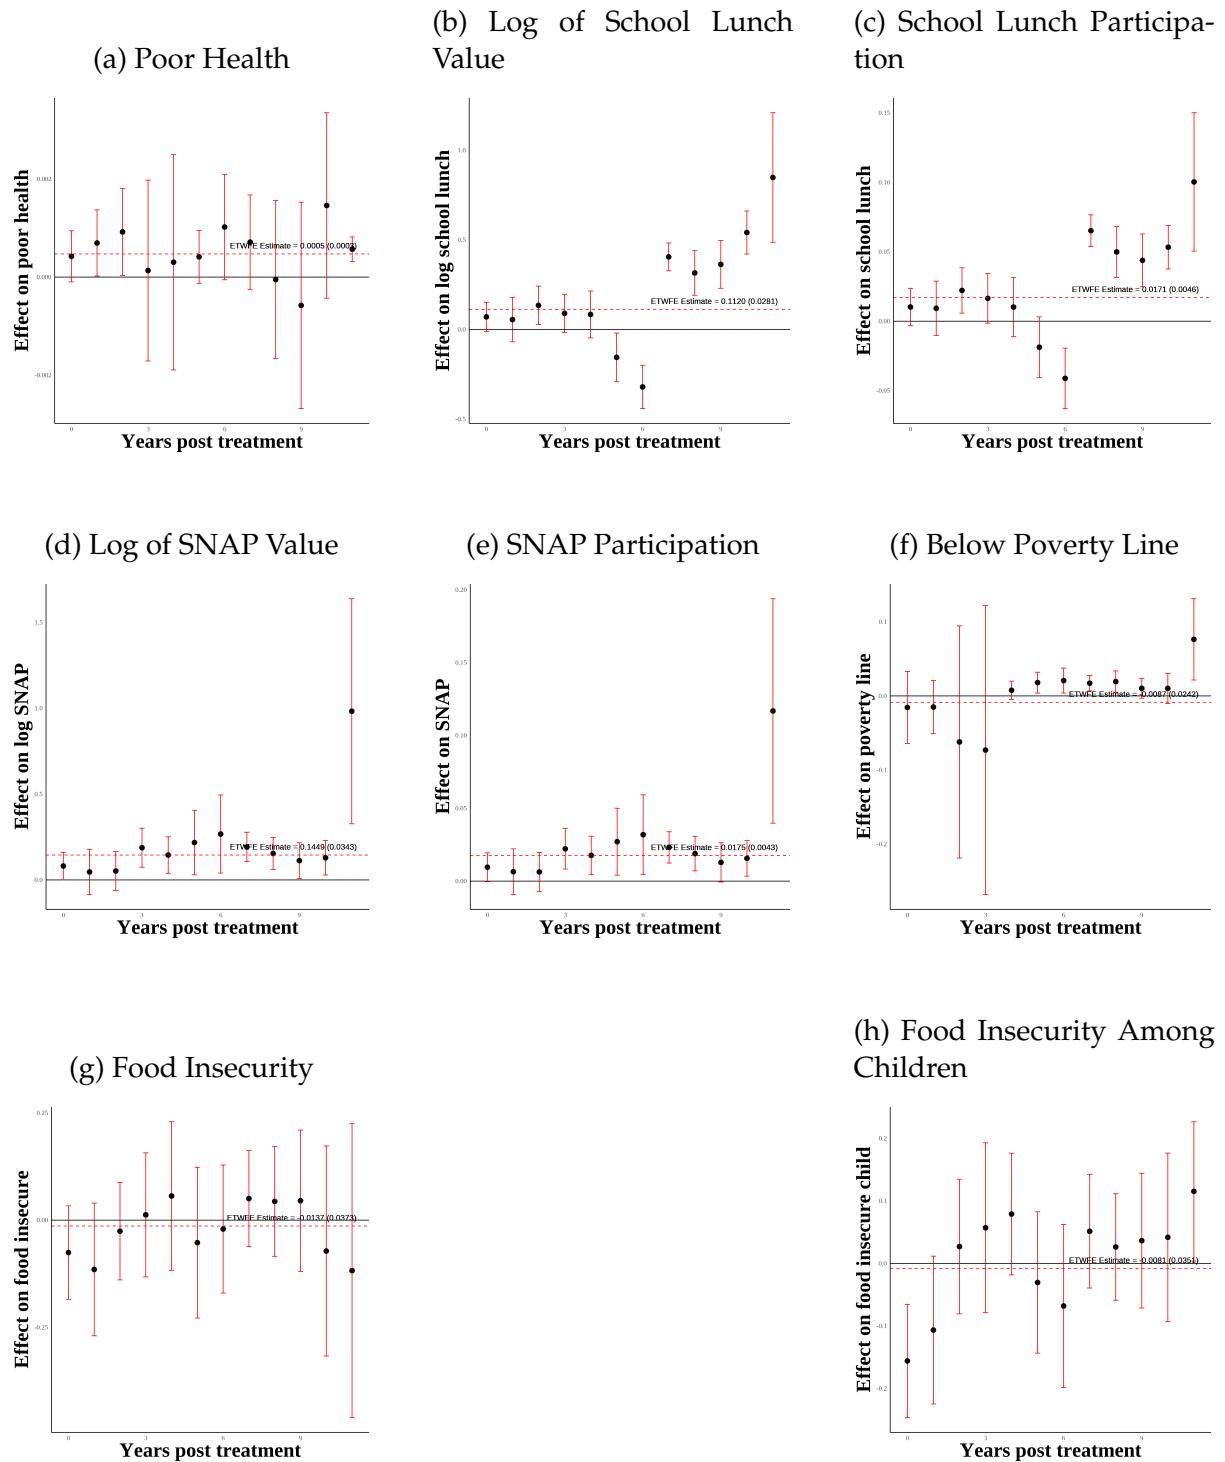

Figure 9: Effect of Immigration Enforcement on Second Generation Outcomes: WH Parents

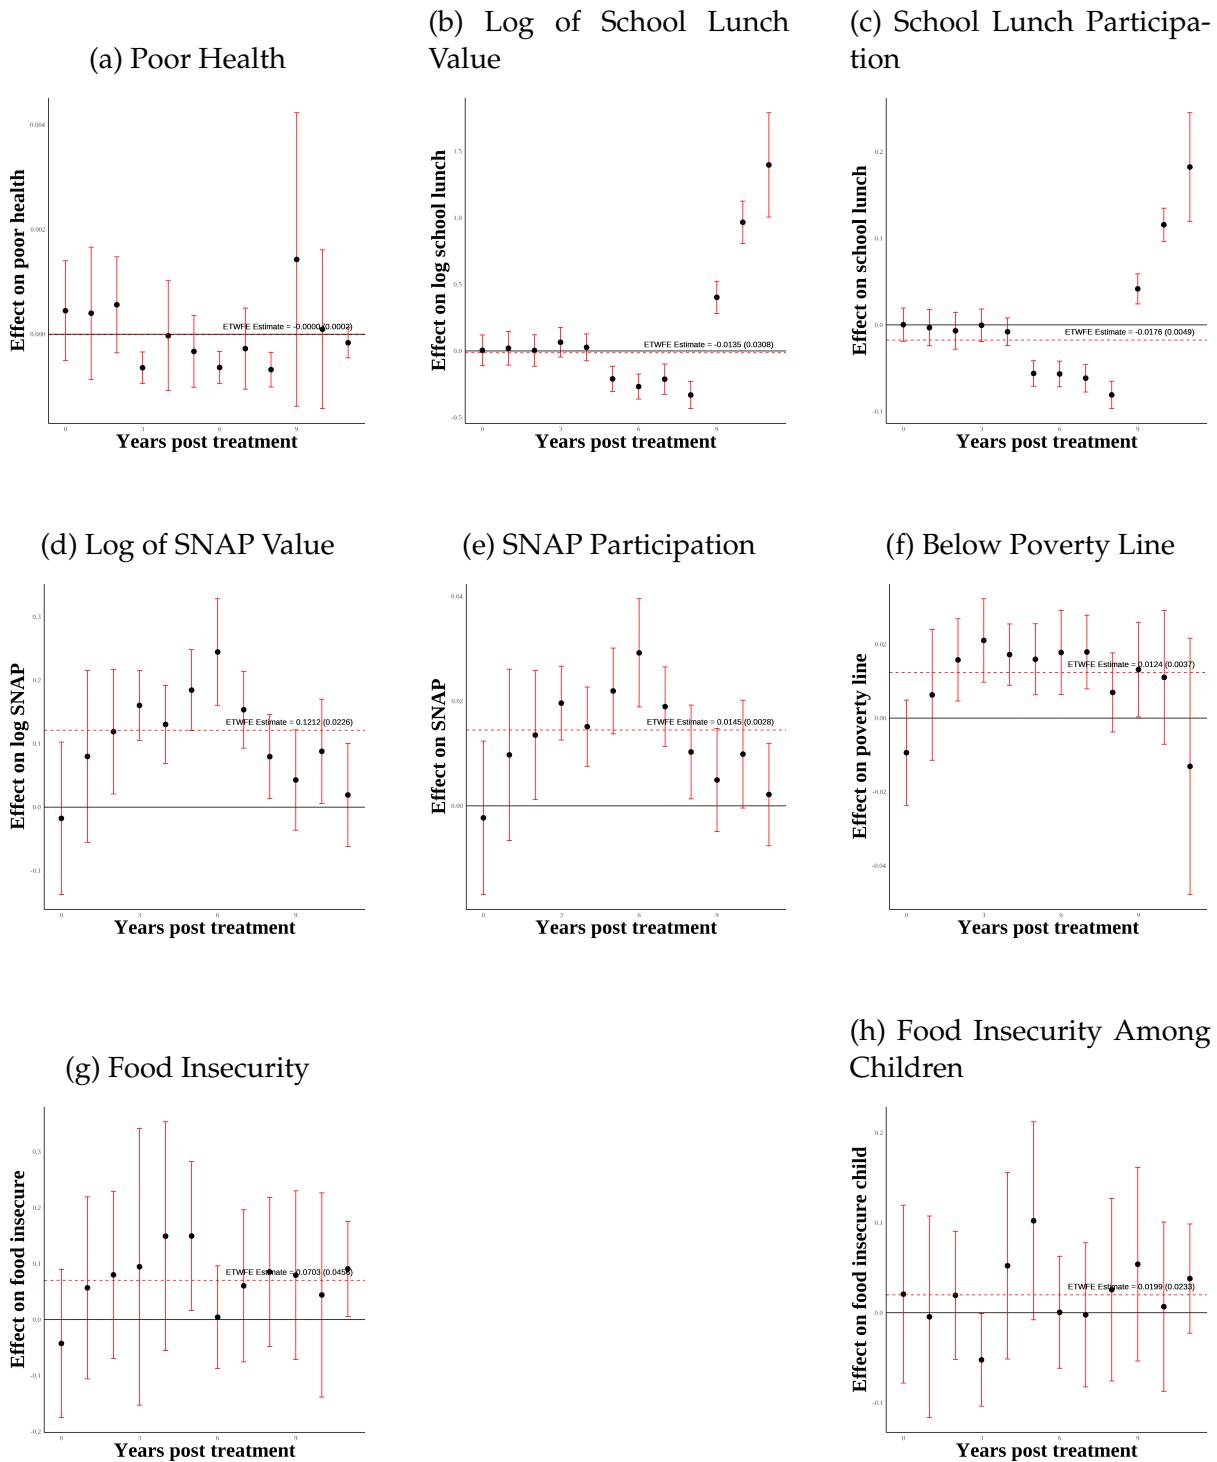

Figure 10: Effect of Immigration Enforcement on Third Generation Outcomes

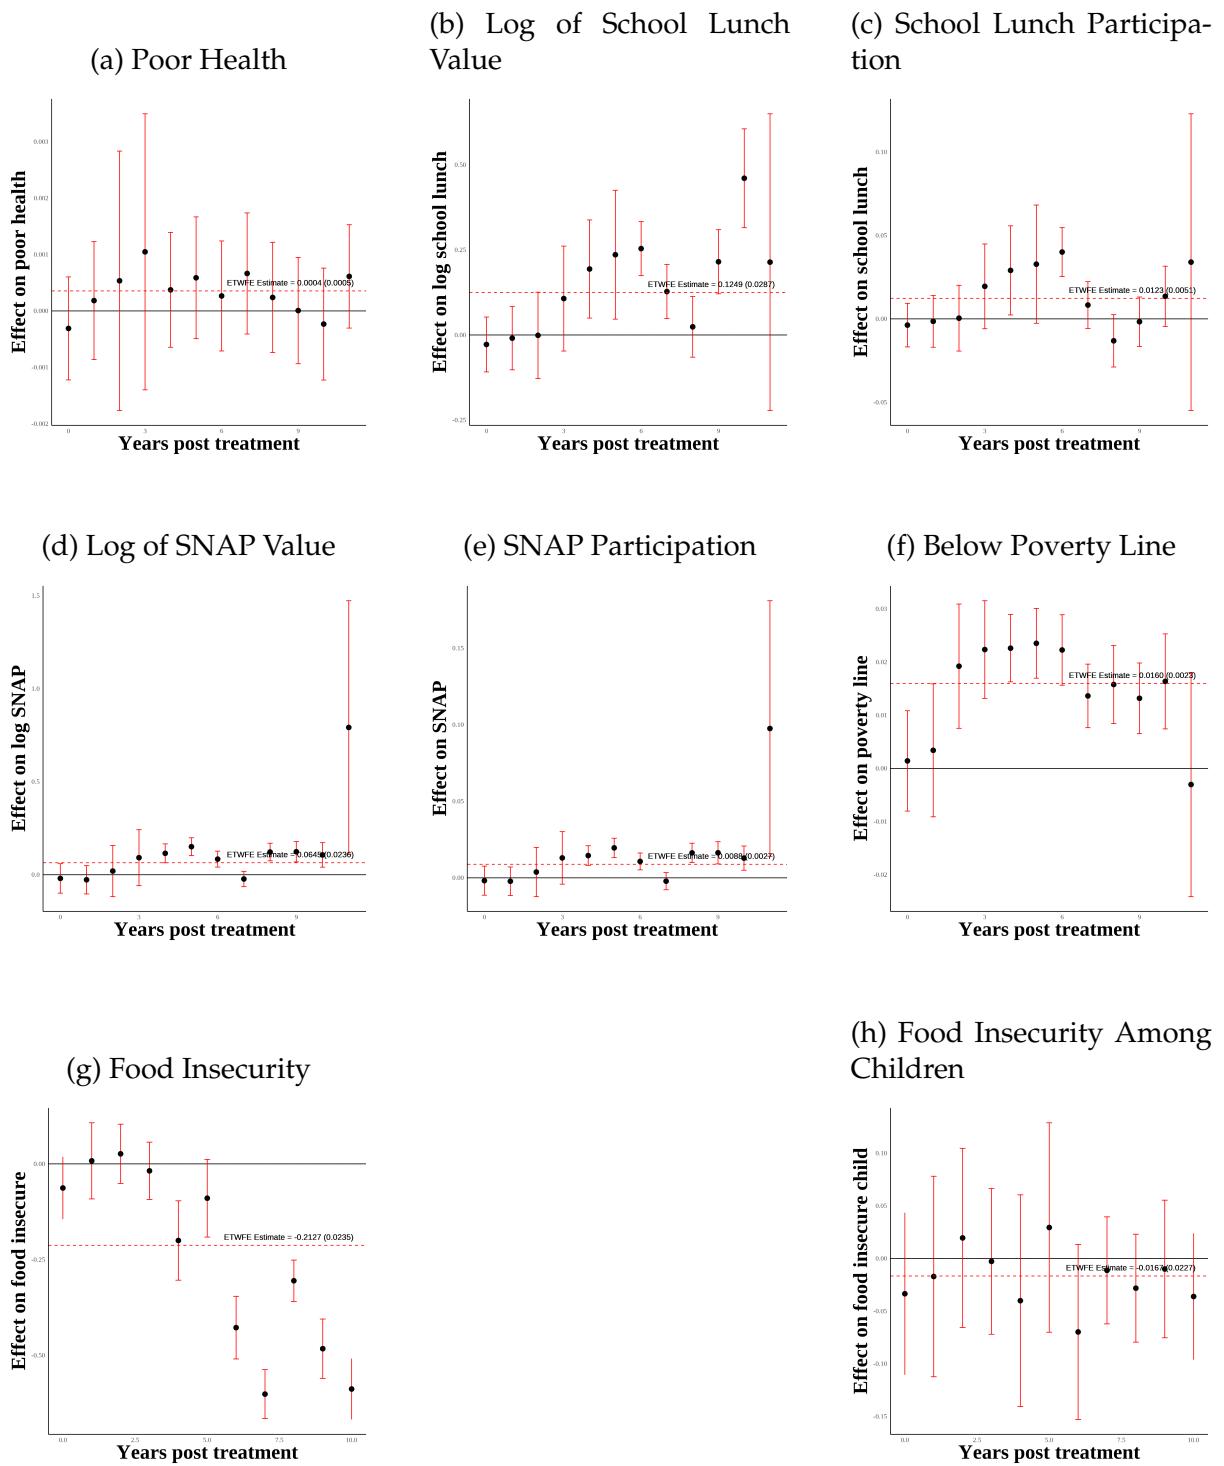

Figure 11: Effect of Immigration Enforcement on Third Generation Outcomes (One Hispanic Grandparent)

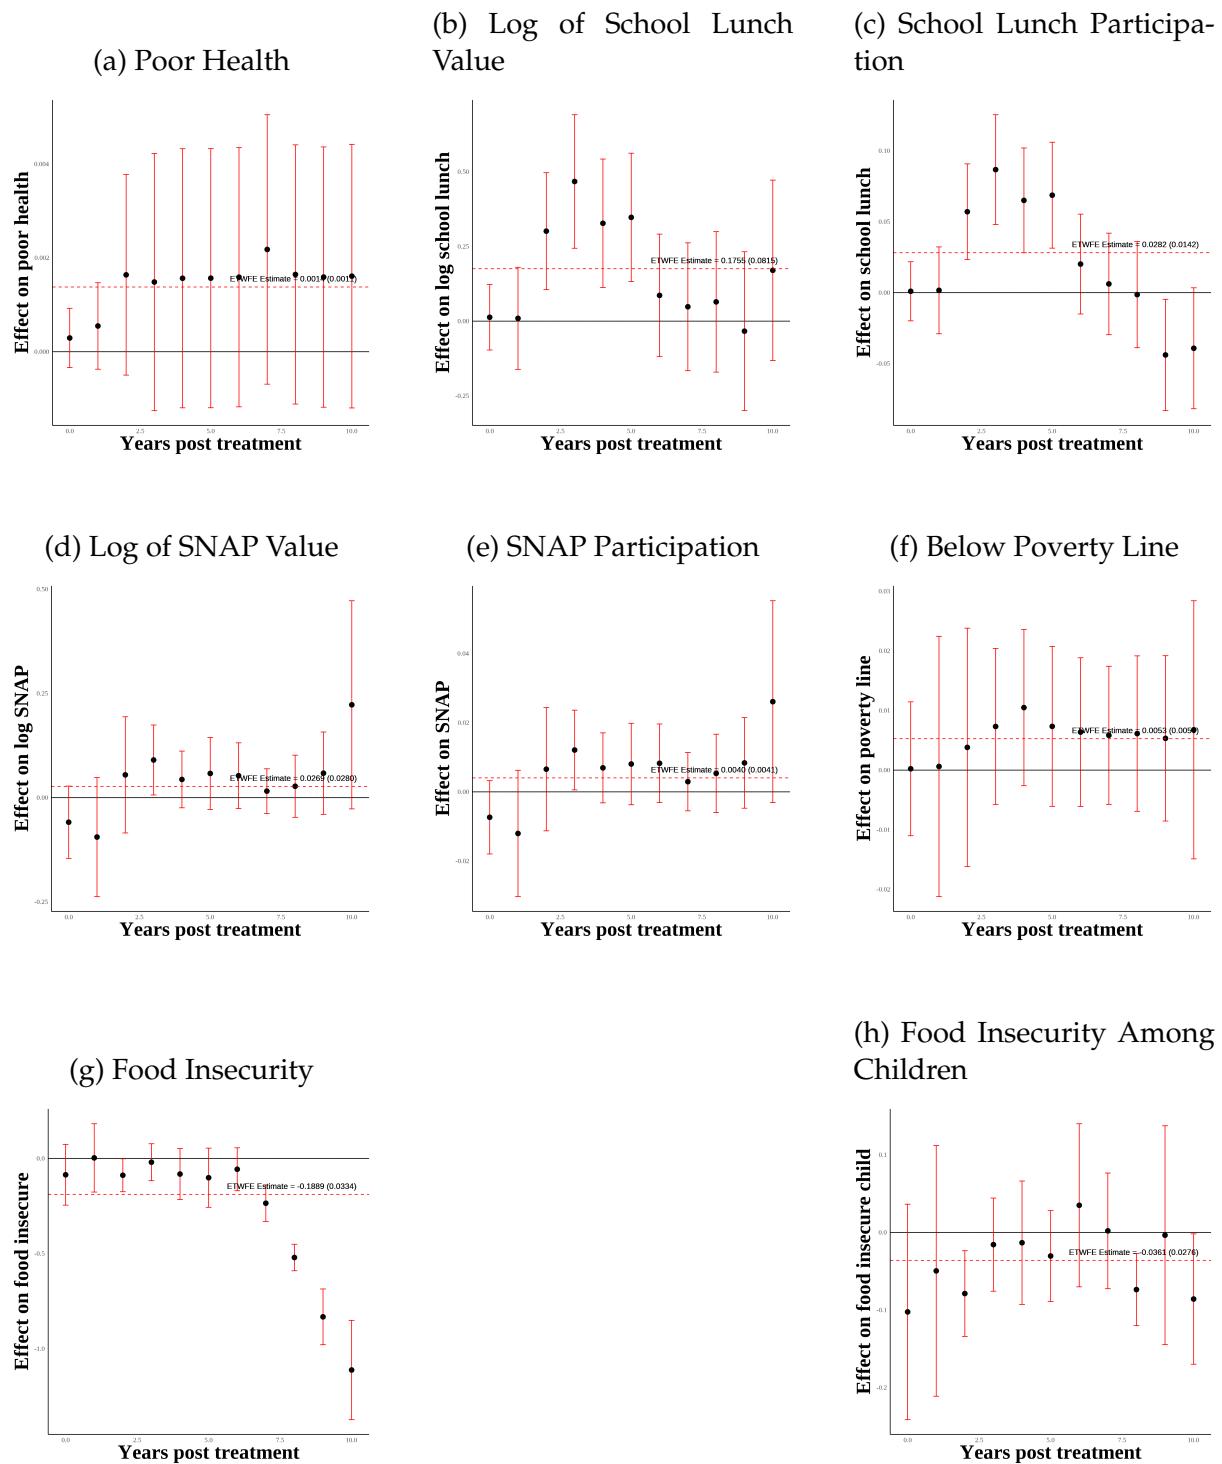

Figure 12: Effect of Immigration Enforcement on Third Generation Outcomes (Two Hispanic Grandparents)

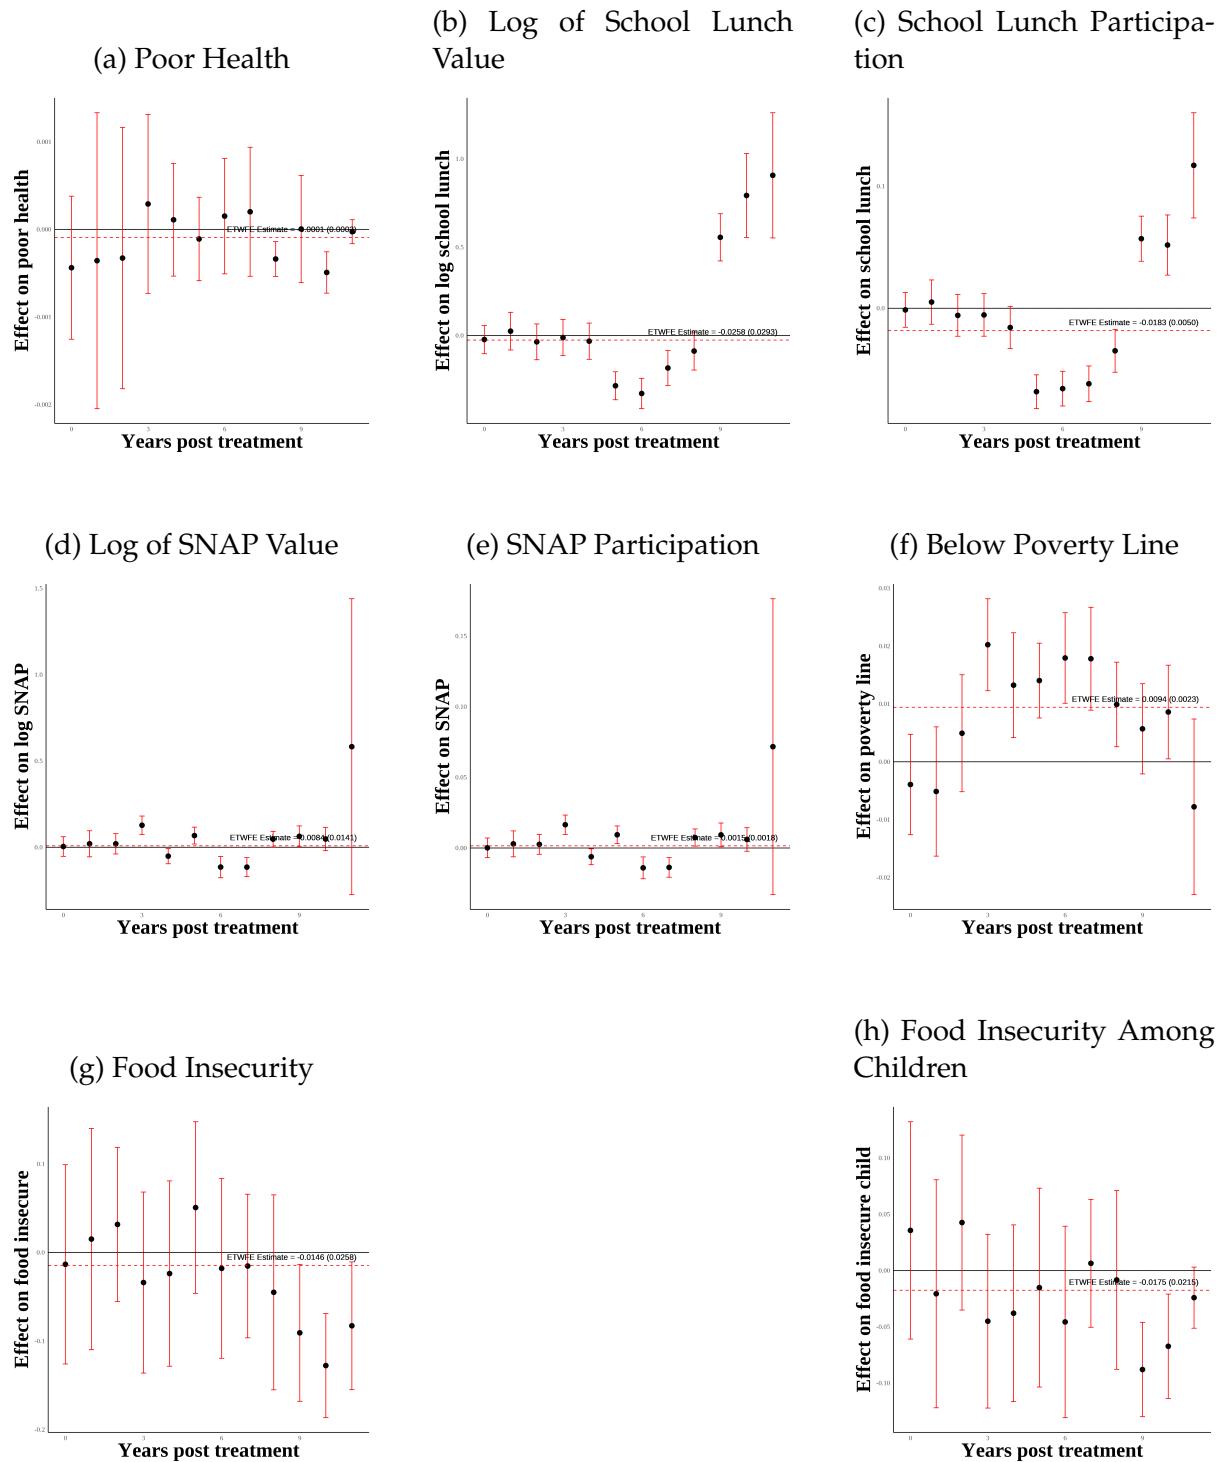

Figure 13: Effect of Immigration Enforcement on Third Generation Outcomes (Three Hispanic Grandparents)

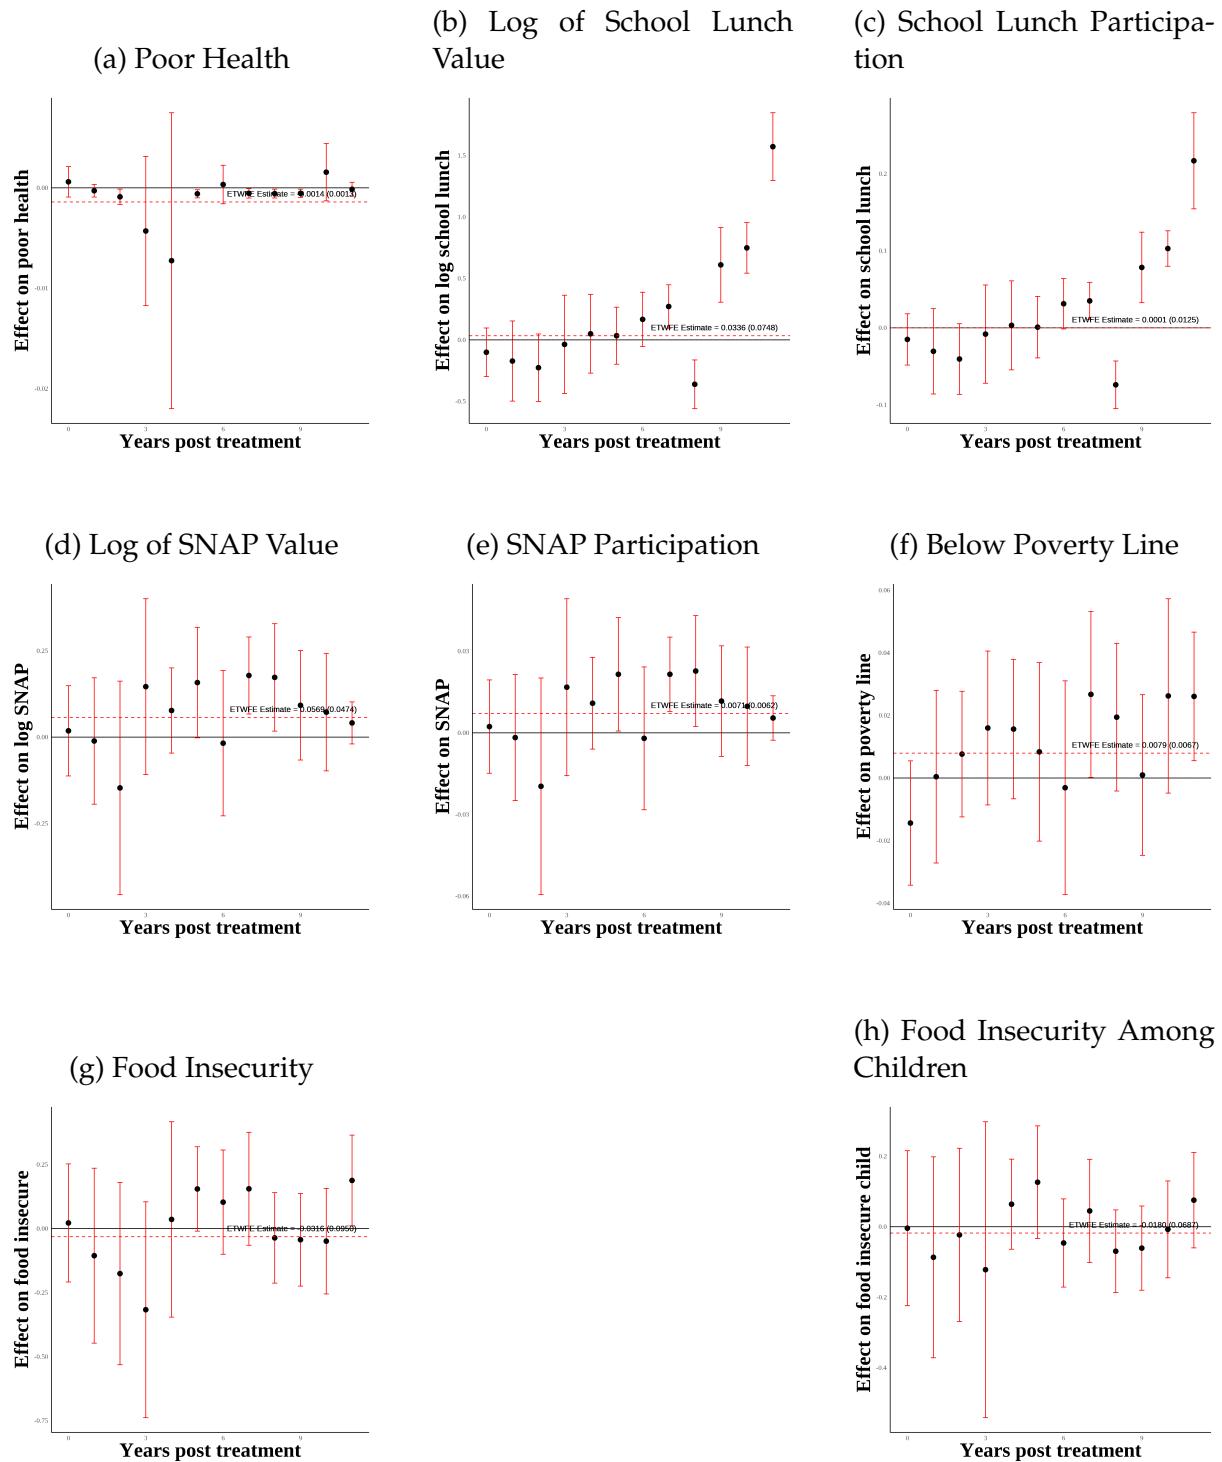

Figure 14: Effect of Immigration Enforcement on Third Generation Outcomes (Four Hispanic Grandparents)

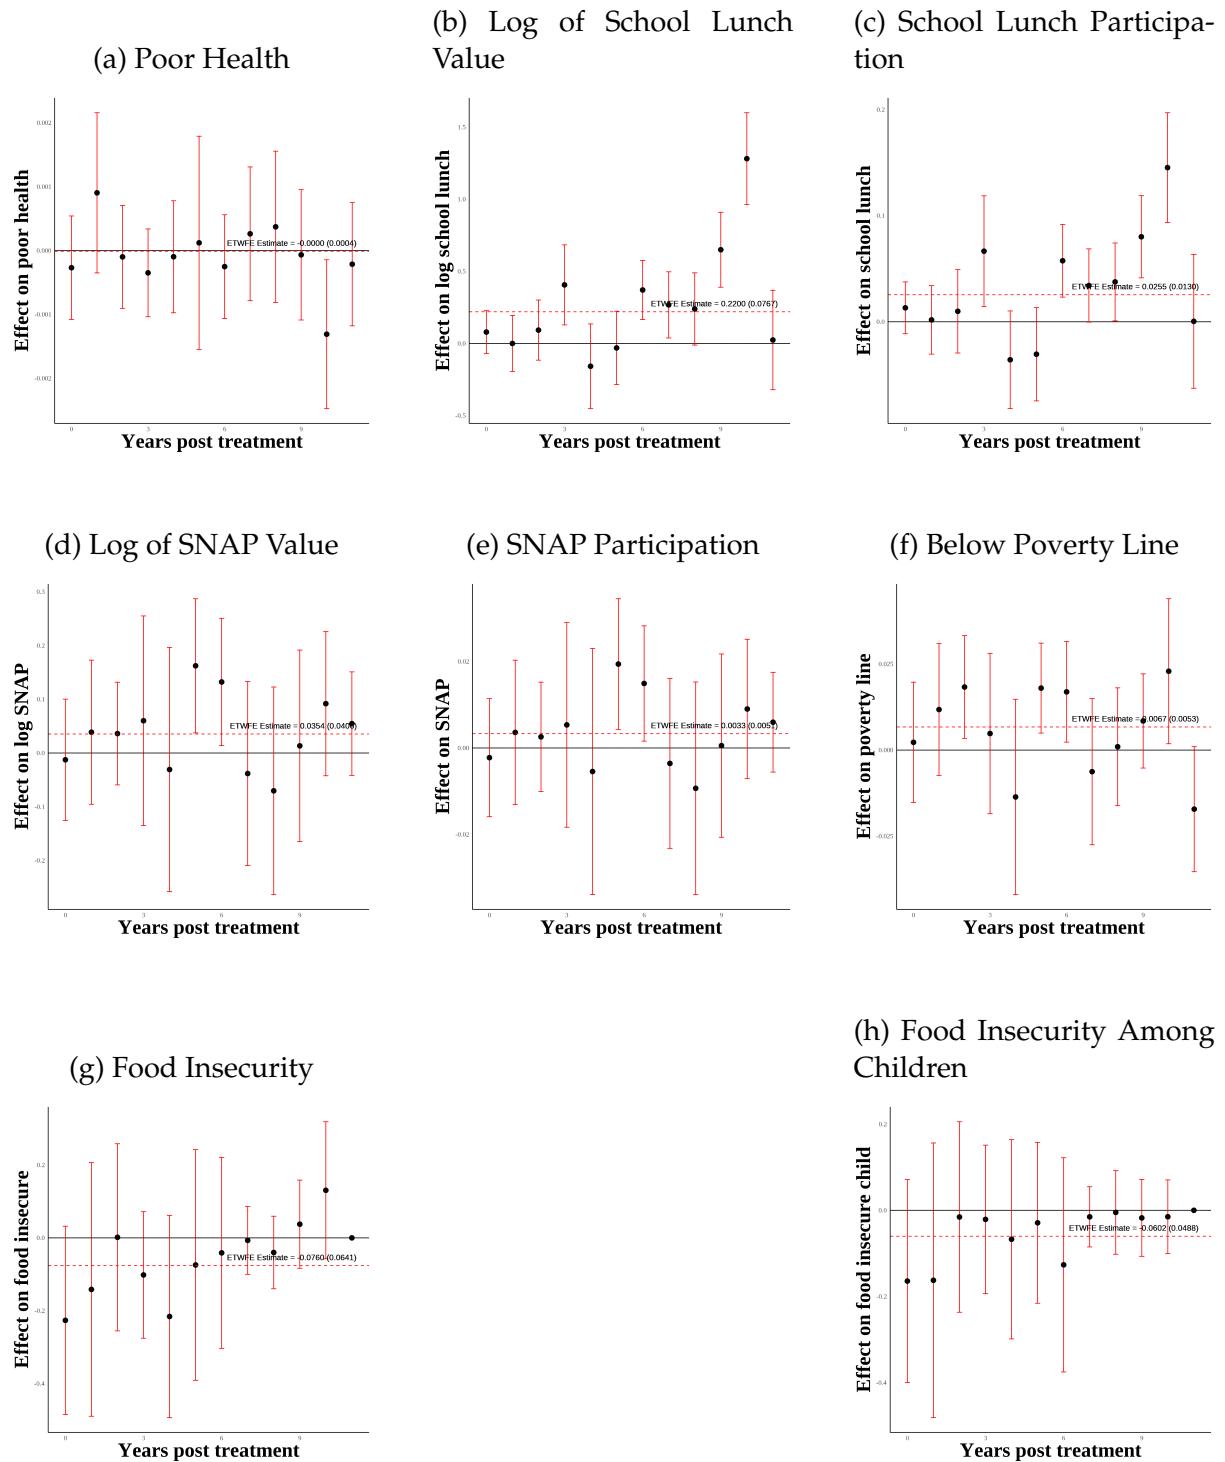

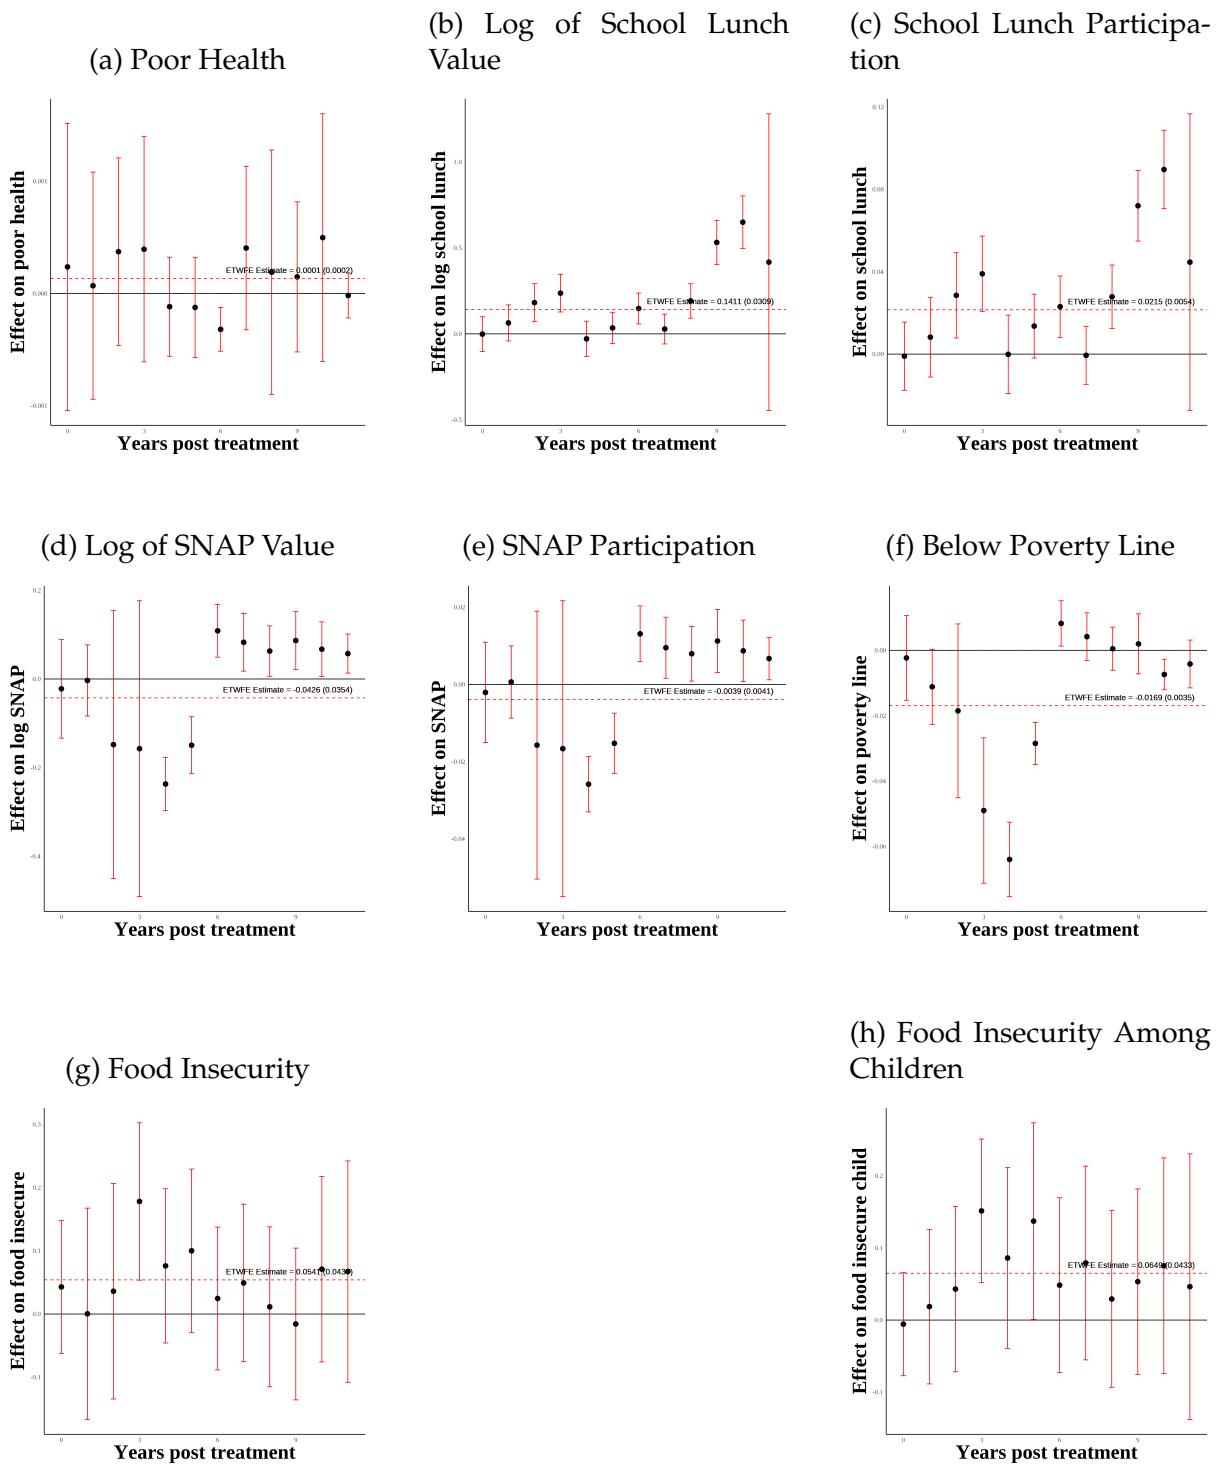

Figure 15: Effect of Immigration Enforcement on Fourth Generation+ Outcomes

A FIGURES

B TABLES